RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

PORTFOLIO MANAGER'S REPORT

Manitou was appointed sub-advisor to the Aston Hill U.S. Conservative Growth Fund in December of 2016. The last few weeks of the year were spent re-positioning the fund to be consistent with our core approach and aligned with the opportunities we see ahead. As this is our first monthly commentary, we will offer insight into our core approach as well as our thoughts on the current investing environment.

Core to our approach is the notion that individuals invest in the stock market with the hope and expectation that their money will be worth more in the future. We translate this notion into an internal benchmark of striving to generate returns that exceed CPI + 7% (before fees) on a rolling 3-year basis. We believe that if we can achieve this absolute return hurdle we will likely outperform the equity benchmarks on a long term basis. The focus on absolute returns drives our independent research process which is concentrated on gaining sufficient knowledge of any company in which we might purchase an ownership stake such that we can calibrate the business risks and opportunities, be selective in the risks we will take and use the knowledge to try and gain a price advantage in the market. In practice, this results in an approved list of quality companies with designated valuation points that signal when we should hold big positions, small positions, sell, etc. We generally hold around 20 stocks as we believe this provides the opportunity to achieve diversification while taking positions big enough to make a difference, balanced against avoiding big losses from a single position. We are also willing to hold cash when opportunities are scarce or risks outweigh opportunities. While the bulk of our research is directed at investigating in individual companies, we do examine the macro and geopolitical environment as this sets the backdrop for the conditions in which companies operate.

The year 2016 was certainly one that was dominated by macro and geopolitical events. On the geopolitical front, it was a year of unexpected outcomes as the U.K. voted in favour of Brexit, the U.S. elected Donald Trump and OPEC actually made a collaborative agreement to cut oil production. While we do make our water-cooler bets on which way a particular event might unfold, we try to position our portfolios for any outcome and be ready to take advantage of volatility that might emerge to build, or trim, positions that we believe are not properly valued. The lack of volatility from the unexpected outcomes was a significant surprise. We were active in building, and adding to, positions after the Brexit vote and associated mild sell-off, but the surprise election of Donald Trump ended up driving markets higher despite the election night fear that seemed to spike when it first appeared. "The Donald" had a real chance of being President Elect. This lack of volatility is testament to the macro environment of historically low interest rates. It is driving capital out of income products and into equities. It seems any modest sell-off in stocks is quickly met with buying interest and any hint of higher growth adds to what, by many measures, is a fully valued stock market. The low interest rate policy is a reaction to slow economic growth, post the financial crisis. The mix of low growth and low rates has resulted in companies raising cheap debt. However, rather than investing in people and equipment many have bought back shares while focusing on cost reductions. The result has been very modest sales growth with decent earnings per share growth off record profit margins and a reduction in share count.

Looking ahead, we will, as always, stay focused on identifying individual opportunities. Elements that could move the market, and create opportunities, include the price of oil which may be volatile as investors scrutinize the implementation of the OPEC agreement and the response of Canadian and U.S. producers to oil prices in the mid-50's. Trade news could be a market mover, and currency mover, as the Trump administration moves from campaign rhetoric to federal policy. In the U.S., corporate tax reform and stimulus spending appear to be top of the agenda. Our broader view is that the strength of policy rarely matches the intensity of the rhetoric and the lag from policy to economic impact is longer than many expect. The Liberal Government of Canada announced stimulus spending shortly after the election and projects are still waiting for funding. If U.S. tax reform results in a significant repatriation of cash, that would have the potential to be a significant event but would depend on whether the cash is used to invest for growth or spent in other ways. Business investment in people, software, equipment, etc., is critical for sustained productivity and spending growth. There is a possibility that a key indicator could be companies exceeding sales targets while missing earnings targets as the re-investment takes place. Essentially the reverse of results from recent years where companies did not invest and focused on cost controls.

Our base case is we expect the business climate to improve modestly in North America, with pro-growth governments in place in the U.S. and Canada. The U.S. Conservative Growth fund will, on average, carry 20 stocks plus/minus 5. We will stay U.S. centric and add select international names as opportunities warrant. We will start the year with a healthy cash position and will actively monitor policy action and track productivity and business investment to help define the backdrop in which companies operate. We will invest in a diversified, select, group of companies that we believe have a sustainable core business that would be minimally impacted by policy change and have the financial strength to navigate a significant change to the business environment.

MANAGEMENT FEES

LOGiQ Asset Management Ltd. is the Manager of the Fund. Pursuant to the management agreement between the Fund and the Manager, the Manager is responsible for the day-to-day operations of the Fund, and in return, the Fund pays the Manager management fees. Series A and Series F of the Fund pay management fees of up to 2.0% and 1.0%, respectively, to the Manager for providing general management and administrative services. No management fees are charged for Series I shares. Instead, each investor negotiates a separate fee, which is payable directly to the Manager.

Out of the management fees, the Manager is required to pay financial advisors a service fee for ongoing services they provide to investors. The service fee is calculated monthly and payable monthly, based on the total client assets invested in Series A/TA6 shares of the Fund held by each financial advisor's clients throughout the month. The annual rate of the service fee depends on the purchase option chosen by the investor. For Series A/TA6 shares purchased under the initial sales charge option, the annual rate is a maximum of 1.00% and for Series A/TA6 shares purchased under the low-load, deferred sales charge option, the annual rate is a maximum of 0.50%. The service fee for low-load, deferred sales charge units changes to the initial sales charge service fee annual rate on the third anniversary of the investment. There are no service fees on Series F/TF6 shares of the Fund.

For the year ended December 31, 2016, management fees were $36,940 ($2,759 in 2015).

Administration Fees

The Manager allocates back to the Fund a portion of the cost of individuals who have spent time working on the operation and oversight of the Fund. For the year ended December 31, 2016, administration fees amounted to $ nil ($60 in 2015).

⁽²⁾ MER is based on the requirements of NI 81-106 and includes the total expenses (excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs) of the Fund for the stated period, including interest expense and issuance costs, if applicable, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the average Net Asset Value of the period. Please see the "Expense Ratio" section following this table for further discussion of the calculation.

⁽⁴⁾ The Fund's portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the Fund's Portfolio Manager manages its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the year. The higher the Fund's portfolio turnover rate in a year, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the year and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the year. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of the Fund. Portfolio turnover rate is calculated by dividing the lesser of the cost of purchases and the proceeds of sales of portfolio securities for the period, excluding cash and short-term investments maturing in less than one year, by the average market value of investments during the period.
